Kentucky Downs: cuando el mercado de apuestas pareció descifrar el enigma

Algo insólito ocurrió durante la temporada de carreras de 2025 en Kentucky Downs: el mercado de apuestas pareció encontrarle la vuelta al hipódromo.

Basta considerar que, tan recientemente como en el 2021, los favoritos en Kentucky Downs apenas ganaban el 21% de las carreras, una cifra muy por debajo de los estándares actuales. El porcentaje de triunfos de los favoritos aumentó cada año desde entonces y en 2024 llegó al 33%. Pero el año pasado, los favoritos cruzaron la meta primero en un sorprendente 37% de las ocasiones.

Es una cifra muy elevada para un meeting extremadamente corto, disputado en un hipódromo poco convencional, donde el tamaño de los lotes alcanzó por segundo año consecutivo un impresionante promedio de 10.8 participantes por carrera.

¿Qué ocurrió? Quién sabe. Pero quizá este pequeño hipódromo de césped al estilo europeo, instalado prácticamente en medio de la nada, en la frontera con Tennessee, en la pequeña localidad de Franklin, Kentucky, finalmente alcanzó la madurez y se incorporó al circuito principal.

Eso significa que Kentucky Downs podría dejar de ofrecer el festival de caos que alguna vez fue.

Seguramente los apostadores experimentados, acostumbrados a jugar de manera metódica, no apreciaban el grado de aleatoriedad que alguna vez caracterizó al corto meeting de Kentucky Downs. Pero quienes buscaban oportunidades marginales para convertir pequeñas apuestas en grandes premios quizá añoren aquellos tiempos.

O tal vez 2025 haya sido simplemente una anomalía de un año y las tendencias históricas de largo plazo vuelvan a imponerse durante el meeting de siete jornadas que está por comenzar.

Para quienes no conocen Kentucky Downs, se trata realmente de un hipódromo sin equivalente en Norteamérica, con un trazado muy al estilo europeo. Su diseño recuerda a un cono de helado: la parte del helado hacia la izquierda y el cono hacia la derecha.

Solo las carreras de 1 5/16 millas y 1 1/2

millas se disputan alrededor de dos curvas. La primera, frente a las tribunas, es bastante cerrada, mientras que la segunda es extraordinariamente larga para los estándares norteamericanos.

Las carreras de hasta una milla y 70 yardas —seis furlongs, 6 1/2 furlongs, siete furlongs y una milla— consisten esencialmente en una sola curva, aunque con matices. A la altura del poste de los siete furlongs, el trazado hace un pequeño quiebre hacia la derecha que conduce a una enorme y prolongada curva final. Después llega una larga recta, todavía más exigente porque gira hacia la izquierda y asciende durante aproximadamente medio furlong antes de la meta.

Las distancias de 6 1/2 furlongs y una milla son el pan y la mantequilla de Kentucky Downs: 51 de las 79 carreras disputadas el año pasado fueron sobre esas dos distancias.

Las carreras de 1 5/16 millas son, con diferencia, las más habituales entre las que se disputan con dos vueltas, con algunas pruebas de 1 1/2 millas intercaladas. Las de siete furlongs aparecen con poca frecuencia y las de seis furlongs, todavía menos.

La importancia de la posición de partida

El meeting del año pasado no se apartó de las estadísticas acumuladas sobre las posiciones de partida desde 2010, y la regla general tiene bastante sentido común.

Especialmente en las carreras de 6 1/2 furlongs, y hasta una milla, es preferible partir por fuera. Los puestos interiores corren el riesgo de quedar atrapados cuando los caballos que vienen detrás se abalanzan sobre ellos mientras el pelotón atraviesa las primeras ondulaciones y curvas del trazado.

Las carreras de 1 5/16 millas presentan una corta recta inicial antes de la primera curva. Por ello, los puestos centrales o interiores son los más favorables.

¿Y los estilos de carrera?

Bueno, esto sigue siendo carreras de caballos, y siempre es más sencillo ganar cuando no hay que sortear tráfico desde posiciones retrasadas.

A largo plazo no existen sesgos enormes hacia un determinado estilo de carrera en ninguna distancia. Sin embargo, el año pasado las pruebas de 6 1/2 furlongs fueron algo así como un todo o nada.

Hubo 25 carreras de esa distancia: 11 fueron ganadas por ejemplares que corrieron en punta y otras ocho por rematadores.

Pero al analizar las 26 carreras de una milla, encontramos una distribución mucho más amplia entre ganadores que corrieron en punta, cerca del paso, a mitad de grupo o desde posiciones retrasadas.

Y ahí está la cuestión: estamos hablando de un meeting de solo siete días, ¿verdad?

Senecesan aproximadamente 10 años para igualar el volumen de información de un meeting regular de carreras en Norteamérica, y estas estadísticas pueden cambiar radicalmente de un año a otro.

El factor de la baranda

Al igual que el año pasado, se puede asumir que habrá una jornada con la baranda temporal colocada a 50 pies, tres días con la baranda a 25 pies y las últimas tres jornadas con la baranda completamente retirada, o ubicada en su posición original de 0 pies.

Si los cambios en la posición de la baranda modificaron la manera en que se desarrollaron las carreras el año pasado, ciertamente no fue algo evidente.

También hay que asumir que se disputará una gran cantidad de carreras para ejemplares no ganadores.

Kentucky Downs no programa carreras de reclamo y llena sus carteleras con pruebas para no ganadores (Maiden Special Weight), carreras de allowance que con frecuencia incluyen un precio opcional de reclamo, y stakes.

El año pasado, 31 de las 79 carreras del meeting fueron para no ganadores, todas bajo la modalidad maiden special weight, y 19 de estas estuvieron reservadas para ejemplares de 2 años.

Siete debutantes ganaron, todos ellos de 2 años, varios en carreras donde la mayoría de los participantes tampoco había competido anteriormente. No es un lugar sencillo para ganar en el debut, eso está claro.

Los siete debutantes ganadores pertenecieron a seis establos. Cinco entrenadores consiguieron un triunfo de un debutante, pero Kelsey Danner envió a dos ejemplares de 2 años que ganaron en su primera presentación: fueron, además, sus únicos triunfos durante el meeting.

Entrenadores a seguir

Brad Cox consiguió un triunfo con un debutante y encabezó la clasificación de entrenadores con ocho victorias en 23 salidas, un porcentaje de triunfos imposible de mantener a largo plazo en Kentucky Downs.

Desde 2020, Cox todavía posee el mejor porcentaje de victorias entre los 10 entrenadores con mayor volumen de participantes, con un 21.40%. Sus ejemplares han generado un retorno de inversión de $1.98.

No es precisamente información privilegiada decir que Cox es un entrenador para seguir, pero existen algunas tendencias de largo plazo que vale la pena considerar.

Mike Maker solía ser el Mr. Kentucky Downs, pero aunque ensilló seis ganadores el año pasado, desde 2020 presenta récord de 35 victorias en 309 salidas, un 11 por ciento de efectividad y un retorno de inversión de $1.14.

Con todo respeto, y sin ánimo de lanzar críticas, otros entrenadores con bajos porcentajes de victorias en Kentucky Downs desde 2020 son Steve Asmussen, con 9%; Mark Casse 7%; Ian Wilkes 7%; Vickie Oliver 5%, y Eddie Kenneally 6%..

Entre quienes han presentado menos caballos están Dale Romans, con 1 triunfo en 31 salidas; Chris Davis, 2 de 27; Chris Hartman, 1 de 30; Anna Meah, 0 de 35, y Michael McCarthy, 0 de 31.

Todd Pletcher no aparece en esta lista. Solo suma dos ganadores desde 2020, pero su récord de 35-2-10-4 indica que también ha tenido bastante mala suerte.

En el otro extremo aparece Brendan Walsh, con 6 victorias en 60 salidas y un retorno de inversión de $1.98, sin que este número esté inflado por grandes dividendos. Sus ejemplares merecen una consideración adicional.

Wesley Ward también resulta consistentemente peligroso: 27 victorias en 138 salidas y un ROI de $1.80.

Michael Stidham, por su parte, presenta desde 2020 récord de 27-7-3-2 y un impresionante ROI de $2.59, lo que lo convierte en un productor constante.

Ellis Park y Saratoga, las principales referencias

Los ejemplares que habían competido previamente en Ellis Park, especialmente, pero también en Saratoga, representaron más de la mitad de los participantes radicados en Norteamérica durante 2025.

Estos fueron los números:

Ellis Park: 28 ganadores en 274 salidas, 10.2%, dividiendo promedio de $16.30 y 5 victorias en 45 participaciones en stakes, para un 11 por ciento.

Saratoga: 21 ganadores en 130 salidas, 16.1%, dividiendo promedio de $9.59 y 11 victorias en 77 participaciones en stakes, para un 14.2 por ciento.

Ellis Park ofreció mucho más por el dinero apostado y, de hecho, los caballos que habían competido previamente allí produjeron un retorno de inversión general ligeramente positivo durante el meeting de 2025.

Los ejemplares procedentes de Saratoga redujeron el dividendo promedio del meeting, que terminó en un mínimo histórico de $14.18.

También aparecerá algún ganador aislado procedente de Colonial Downs, aunque los caballos provenientes de ese hipódromo fueron ampliamente superados en las carreras de stakes.

¿Dónde salieron cinco ganadores del año pasado?

De Kentucky Downs.

Así es. Cinco caballos que realizaron su segunda salida durante el corto meeting terminaron ganando, y esta se ha convertido en una tendencia cada vez más marcada.

Rara vez vemos en Norteamérica caballos que regresen a competir con tan poco descanso a este nivel.

Es difícil explicar por qué pueden hacerlo en Kentucky Downs y no en otros escenarios, pero resulta mucho más sencillo entender por qué.

Este es un hipódromo para especialistas.

La mitad de la batalla consiste en encontrar un caballo capaz de manejar las características fundamentales de las carreras en Kentucky Downs. Y un ejemplar que ya ganó durante el meeting demostró que puede hacerlo.

El atractivo continúe europeo

Uno imaginaría que los europeos podrían sentirse atraídos por un hipódromo de su estilo que reparte una enorme cantidad de dinero.

Finalmente, en 2025 comenzaron a llegar en mayor número, una tendencia que probablemente continuará.

Los ejemplares europeos tuvieron récord de 8-2-0-4 la temporada pasada, con Wimbledon Hawkeye ganando el Nashville Derby y Flatten the Curve aplastando a sus rivales en la Bowling Green Gold Cup.

Cambios en las apuestas

También habrá otros cambios, incluido uno de gran importancia.

Kentucky Downs elevó la apuesta mínima para Ganador, Place, y Show a $5, desde el estándar norteamericano de $2.

Varios hipódromos han adoptado apuestas exóticas —generalmente combinaciones de varias carreras— con mínimos superiores a $2, pero Kentucky Downs es el primero en elevar la apuesta base para las apuestas directas.

Otras nuevas apuestas con mínimos superiores serán el Último Pick 3 de $3, el Último Daily Double de $5 y una Exacta con base de $5 en la última carrera de cada jornada.

En una medida favorable para los apostadores, el takeout (retención) del Pick 3, Pick 4 y Pick 5 también fue reducido del 20 al 15%.

El resto del menú de apuestas permanece sin cambios, con una retención de 19.5 % para las exactas y de 20 % para las demás apuestas exóticas. El takeout para la jugada a ganador, segundo, o tercero, es de 17%.

Siete jornadas y más de $25 millones

Siete días de carreras. 20 stakes con una bolsa total superior a $25 millones.

Hace varios años, los propietarios y entrenadores descubrieron que valía la pena estructurar toda la temporada de un caballo alrededor de una carrera en Kentucky Downs.

El año pasado, el mercado de apuestas pareció descubrir el hipódromo más inusual de Estados Unidos.

Ahora estamos a punto de comprobar si esa tendencia continuará.
